Description I have the same theme on both cybercamp.commons.gc.cuny.edu and khatchad.commons.gc.cuny.edu. However, the former has a title on each page and breadcrumb appear automatically while the former does not. Do you know why?

It appears that you've written some custom CSS that hides the .column-title element. Breadcrumbs are inside this element. See screenshot. https://cybercamp.commons.gc.cuny.edu/wp-admin/customize.php?autofocus%5Bsection%5D=custom_css&return=https://cybercamp.commons.gc.cuny.edu/wp-admin/themes.php?page=simple-css You may need to use more specific selectors if you intend to hide something other than the breadcrumbs.
