Thank you. It looks like the WP Accessibility plugin is disabling them. See "Remove target attribute from links" at Dashboard > Settings > WP Accessibility. If the user would like links to open in a new tab, that checkbox will have to be unchecked.

What a silly thing. I'll let the user know. (How is this an accessibility issue? She asked rhetorically.)

#5 - 2019-01-24 03:06 PM - Boone Gorges

The real accessibility issue is that users should be warned about the behavior. See <https://www.w3.org/TR/WCAG20-TECHS/G201.html>, <https://www.w3.org/TR/WCAG20-TECHS/H83.html>

I think you can close this but

Do Krysia and Laurie know?
