Description
A member noticed that the twitter icon used on the member portfolio page is out of date. Is it possible to switch to the new one? https://about.twitter.com/en_us/company/brand-resources.html (The old twitter logo looks a bit like the current tumblr icon to him.)

Good call. Here's the change for the portfolio:

We also use the old logo in the main site nav (to the far right, by the RSS icon). I've made a change locally to see what the new logo looks like. It's pretty small and hard to read. Maybe Sonja could have a quick look at the screenshot to see if it reads properly. I've also attached a screenshot of another version where I increase the size of the icons to take up more of the vertical space in the menu area - this would be an alternative that's easy to implement.

Hi Boone, thanks for sharing the screenshots. The footer icons are looking good as they are. For the header, I would either go with the larger size, as the current icon size is quite small. Or alternatively maybe we'll just use the icons on it's own, not inside a button. See attached mockup.

The non-button links look good to me. Sonja, can you please provide the images?

Great! Please find attached the SVGs for both icons. I would recommend to implement these icons in white on default, and use the original brand colors on hover:

Twitter: #1da1f2
RSS: #dd7d37

Thanks.

Thanks, Sonja! I've attached a screenshot that shows the padding/positioning I chose - I tried to make it roughly match what we have now, with some tweaks to allow for breathing room. Let me know if this gets your OK.

Yes that works for me. You could even add a little more padding between the two icons. But otherwise good to go.
