Ray, could you please figure something out? Looks like there might be room to squeeze the icons up next to the site logo (negative margin-top or something). Or maybe bump the whole nav down on mobile?

(also, FYI, I created a new category called "Responsive Design" to track issues specific to mobile displays. If you don't like that title or feel we should just group everything under "Design," please rename/consolidate

Fixed in https://github.com/cuny-academic-commons/cac/commit/127e5f78136593e5e2ecb2ea44ce52002e96c126

I bumped the social icons down to the second row when the device width is less than 540px. This feels like the best solution in my eyes.
