Description

Lidia is trying to get the home page to paginate posts - display 5 posts at a time. The Customizr theme seems to provide this option (see attached). But the number of posts per page seems to be the same as the "Show number of Posts" on the WP Reading settings page. That is, if you change one the other changes. Is this a bug in the theme?

It looks to me like the setting applies to date archives, taxonomy archives, etc, but not to the home page. Are you seeing something similar?

Yeah, but if you go to the Front Page content, it links to the same setting. I don't see how pagination could ever work if it is updating number of posts to display (i.e. Settings>>Reading: "Blog pages show at most:").

I see others are complaining about this: <https://www.google.com/search?client=firefox-b-1-d&q=customizr+pagination>

I also see that Lidia opened a ticket: <https://wordpress.org/support/topic/pagination-not-working-on-front-page-customizr-theme/>

Thanks, Scott. I've traced the behavior to this point <https://github.com/presscustomizr/customizr/blob/c6fcfa1475a1fbc9ac660ecc9a584d007fef262e/templates/index-no-model.php#L183>, which returns true on archive pages but false on the home page. I don't know how to debug this further without extensive digging. I'll leave a comment on the wordpress.org ticket.

The theme author responded at <https://wordpress.org/support/topic/pagination-not-working-on-front-page-customizr-theme/#post-13009712>. In my tests, this fixed it - you have to explicitly toggle "Display navigation in your home page". Perhaps you could ask Lidia to confirm?

Hi Boone - I found that she has a bunch of custom css including this line:

.post-navigation {
display:none;

When I commented it out, I see that the navigation is now appearing. I don't think it was a settings issue, but let me know if you disagree.

Aha, very interesting. Yes, I'd say you're correct.

I'm going to close on the basis of the conversation above. Please reopen if we think there's more steps to perform here.
