Description
I've received the following email a few times in the last hour. Here's the body: "Greetings! This is a weekly summary of the warnings still present on your site, relating to the jQuery library. These errors should be addressed as soon as possible. There have been no reported deprecations logged in the past week, maybe you no longer need this plugin?" And here's why it came to me: This email was automatically generated by the Enable jQuery Migrate Helper plugin on your website The Ph.D. Program in History This email was automatically generated by the Enable jQuery Migrate Helper plugin on your website Help Anything I should be doing here?

This email was sent by a plugin that we added in our latest release, but hid from regular users. Notifications were only supposed to go to me, but we didn't catch that these weekly ones existed, so they probably went out to lots of people. You can safely ignore the emails. I've made a change so that they should not be sent again.
