Stephen, for this and for the other tickets you've submitted, can you give us a more explicit description of what you want and need? Please write the ticket as if the person reading it does not already know what you are talking about. For instance, please link to the exact site to which you're referring and please give a more explicit description of what is needed. If you could do this for all four of the tickets you created yesterday, we'd appreciate it. Many thanks.

For Zeteo can you download all content from ../wp-content/uploads and zip?

#4 - 2013-06-06 10:38 AM - Matt Gold

Thank you for updating all of these tickets, Stephen. For each of them can I also ask you to provide a direct link to the site you're referring to? Remember that our developers may not know what you're referring to. Many thanks.

For this site:

<http://zeteojournal.com/>

#6 - 2013-09-19 11:42 AM - Stephen Klein

Seems to have been forgotten.

Thanks.

The zip file is 82MB, too large to email or to post here. Do you have a preferred delivery method?

#8 - 2013-09-19 12:10 PM - Stephen Klein

Dropbox or I can download from your website?

#9 - 2013-09-19 12:13 PM - Boone Gorges

Downloading from the Commons is fine, if you don't mind the zip file being public.

#10 - 2013-09-19 12:14 PM - Stephen Klein

Do not mind. It is going to a public repo. Thanks.

OK, you can download it from <http://commons.gc.cuny.edu/zeteo.zip>. I'll remove it in a few days.

Thanks, this works.

One last thing.

I am able to for JITP, but for Zeteo, can you run Tools=>Export
(need the XML)

Not sure how Zeteo publishes. If they publish onto pages or posts, but I need all their 'dynamic content'; however they publish articles.

FYI, Zeteo is no longer associated with the GC, and they'll soon be removing their site from the commons, so feel free to leave it off of updates, etc. at your discretion.

#14 - 2013-09-19 01:06 PM - Matt Gold

sorry should have been "leave it off of archival deposits, etc., at your discretion."

#15 - 2013-09-19 01:06 PM - Stephen Klein

Thanks. Appreciate the heads-up.

So do we want to archive Zeteo?

#16 - 2013-09-19 01:07 PM - Matt Gold

I'd say no
