at our last meeting, we talked about splitting up our lists. Sarah or Dom (added as a watcher), can you please describe what you remember us saying about how the links should be split up? Many thanks.

If I remember correctly, Sarah listed off somewhere between five and 10 new lists, which is why I asked her to open a new issue. :-)

I mentioned we may want to split the current box in the sidebar into two. Maybe one for our official @cunycommons timeline and hashtag timelines and then a separate one just for lists?

Out of the lists I created, we agreed that the ones above would be best suited for the Twitter page. I'm pretty sure we said that we wanted to separate out the lists from our tweets, but I'm not sure where the best place for hashtags are. Should that be a separate area as well (there are only two in use right now - #cuny and #cunyevents)? If so, would we want to re-add @cunycommons mentions/RTs in the area about Commons tweets?

okay, so can you please mock up the two separated groups of twitter lists? Many thanks

Sarah,

What do you think about separating the sidebar into two sections:

Commons on Twitter

Tweets from Commons Members
@cunycommons tweets

CUNY on Twitter

Tweets from Around CUNY
Official CUNY Tweets
CUNY Libraries
CUNY Academic Programs
#cuny

#cunyevents

Reassigning to Dom, whose domain this is.

- Target version changed from 1.6 to 1.5.6

I've created widgets on our twitter.com account for each of the three lists mentioned by Sarah above. I've updated the twitter page layout to better categorize these new lists. I'm moving this ticket to 1.5.6 so we have time to discuss and review my changes before closing the ticket. But the changes will be available after tonight's 1.5.5 release.
