I just loaded the homepage in both Safari and Chrome and it did feel a little slow in both. I inspected the network tab in Chrome and it looked like our images were lading a little slow. Particularly the ones in the slider.

I was experiencing issues earlier with Amazon's systems in my startup's code and a few other unrelated services, but I don't think any of our stuff is dependent on anything related to Amazon AWS or their servers.

Maybe we want to send a message to IT to ask if there were any updates or outages today?

Thanks -- I will ask.

It seems to be running fine for me, though running top does show me some pretty high utilization. That said, I'm unsure whether that's normal for this machine.
