Description

Hi Scott,

can you please create a homepage slide for CUE conference materials and also add info to any kind of events-related help page, showcasing this an example of how a conference can use the CAC productively before, during, and after a conference? Here's a message from the organizers announcing the site:

Dear Colleagues,

I'm writing to share with you the 2014 CUE Conference archive site we have put together. The site includes a link to a video of George Kuh's presentation as well as a pdf of Dr. Kuh's slides, 27 slide presentations sent to us by conference participants, and a curated selection of the tweets posted by conference attendees during the day. You'll find the site here:
http://cuecon2014.commons.gc.cuny.edu/

We think the site provides a valuable record of the day's activities. Perusing it will remind us of the many manifestations of "whole student" learning that were shared on May 2. We are eager to strengthen it with additional presentations. If you were among the presenters on May 2 and haven't yet sent us your work, please consider adding it to the archive by sending it along before the summer whisks everyone away.
