Description

Per our dev team conversation on 7/15/14, it's easy for us to show how many people have downloaded our plugins through our page on WP, but we actually have fewer stats on the code that has made its way into WP/BP core and thus reaches many more users. It would be great if we could have a page on the Commons that details the many contributions we have made upstream. Boone, you mentioned the dev blog for this, which is a possibility, though I think we might also think about a page on the main site that could be linked in the nav bar under About

I am making Scott and Ray watchers -- Scott in case he can help out with the documentation and Ray because he can add to content.

I've begun a page on the dev blog: <http://dev.commonsgc.cuny.edu/free-software-contributions/> Please feel free to change wording or suggest a better home for this content.
